Lay Up Your Treasures in Heaven

Earth is not our home. We are merely passing through to our eternal home with Jesus. God has made us stewards of all that He has given us by design. It all belongs to Him.

He is looking to us to be conduits of His love and blessings to future generations to ensure that His Kingdom will come in the lives of those whom we will never meet in our lifetime.

Planning how your estate will be spent now will ensure that you are directing how your legacy lives on. It is one way to share your testimony and life values through word and deed.

From the Heart of an Aglow Woman:

My husband and I are extremely grateful for how much God has used Aglow in my life. We have included Aglow in our Living Trust. Many women who have been in Aglow for decades now are at the point of deciding where they would like their estate to be left. We felt the best investment is in Aglow. Often, people don't know that they can give in this way and I believe that many would be glad to give back in this manner.

– Dorothy from California

Remembering Aglow in Your Will

If you would like to make an eternal investment through the worldwide Christian evangelistic work of Aglow International, a gift to Aglow through your Will can be structured in one of several ways:

- A certain sum of money can be named: “The sum of dollars ($).”
- A specific object or asset can be named: “Securities (or other property) described as follows:”
- A percentage of the value of your estate can be named: “percent of my estate.”
- The remainder of your estate after other provisions of your Will are carried out: “All the rest, residue, and remainder of my estate...”
- Aglow can be named as the second beneficiary to receive if the person originally named in the Will is not alive or refuses the bequest when the Will is probated.

The following name and address should be used to properly identify Aglow:

Aglow International, P. O. Box 1749
Edmonds, Washington 98020-1749.
